Reckless homicide charged Catterson alleged to have been driving drunk

By Jack C. Ventimiglia
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — Five counts of reckless homicide, and charges of driving with a suspended license and under the influence of alcohol, were filed Monday against the driver of a car in which five persons died Aug. 13.

Gary Catterson, 30, 2259 Edison Ave., was arrested Tuesday by police, Sgt. Dave Ruebhausen said. Catterson appeared to be packing for a trip, Ruebhausen said, and was arrested without incident.

Circuit Judge Philip Rarik set bond at $100,000, Ruebhausen said.

The accident occurred on Illinois 3 when a tanker truck traveling north slammed broad-side into the Catterson's southbound car as the car turned east onto Missouri Avenue.

Killed were the car's passengers: Wanda Chancellor, 29; two daughters, Elizabeth Chancellor, 11, and Lilah Catterson, 6; a son, Christopher Catterson, 4; and a family friend, Steven D. Nelson, 17.

The truck driver, Cortland Reddick, 38, St. Louis, was not injured.

Catterson and a child in the car, Shannon Catterson, 3, survived the crash.

20 hospitalized in pool mishap

By Jack C. Ventimiglia
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — Twenty persons suffering chest pains and breathing problems following a chlorine leak at Wilson Park Pool about 2:10 p.m. Sunday were taken by ambulance to St. Elizabeth Medical Center.

A shower attendant at the pool, Jenny Siede, 17, 1000 St. James St., and 12 other persons spent the night at St. Elizabeth for observation and were released Monday, a hospital spokeswoman said. Seven other persons were treated and released Sunday afternoon.

Park Board President George Sykes on Sunday praised Siede for action taken after she left the pool office to escape the fumes.

"She apparently went back into the office to make the announcement over the loudspeaker to get everyone out of the pool, and in so doing she brought herself right back into (the gas). It was kind of a super gesture on her part," Sykes said.

"She was afraid everybody would be in the water with the stuff spilling out," Sharon Siede, the girl's mother, said Sunday after visiting her daughter at the hospital.

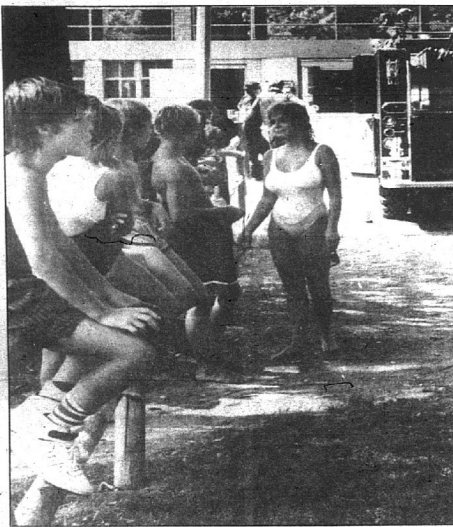

Sharon Siede said her daughter complained Sunday of "a lot of chest pains, a lot of coughing."

The leak occurred while Miles Epperson, 18, acting pool manager, changed a chlorine gas tank, said Walter Brewer, park maintenance supervisor.

Brewer said Epperson had not completely turned off the tank's valve before starting to remove it. The tank leaked, Brewer said, and Epperson immediately left.

"He just slammed the door and ran out, which is not the proper procedure," Brewer said.

Paramedics questioned members of the crowd of about 60 persons, most in swimming suits, standing outside the pool Sunday. The EMTs asked everyone with breathing problems to get into an ambulance. Some children took oxygen at the scene.

New policies made for pool

GRANITE CITY — From now on, only full-time maintenance personnel will change chlorine tanks at the Wilson Park pool.

The tanks will also be checked daily before the pool opens in order to prevent any more pool evacuations in the event of leak such as the one Sunday.

The changes are among several made Monday at a special meeting of the Park Board.

Other changes include holding emergency drills and requiring life guards to carry keys to unlock gates near the pool.

Prior to Monday, the keys were kept in the pool office. Because the gates were locked Sunday, swimmers had to evacuate through the pool building, where they were exposed to chlorine vapor.

"The board is also considering putting an emergency telephone outside the pool building. The pool's only phone is inside, near the chlorination system."

"We will do the responsible thing in all this," George Sykes, Park Board president, said. "We've got to find out now why this happened and make changes."

Frank Marsala, one of five parents at the meeting, said the pool should not have been open. He called it "obsolete."

Marsala's two daughters, ages 4 and 11, were among those treated for chlorine inhalation.

"One of them could have died," Marsala said. "Then what would have happened? You would have told me, 'I'm sorry, sir, but accidents happen.'"

Sykes said the incident was caused by either a faulty chlorine tank or a human error.

Reviews and previews

Arnett gets 40-year sentence

The shotgun killing of 21-year-old Todd Scrum, Granite City, on Oct. 24 resulted in a 40-year sentence last week for Gene Arnett, 29. Arnett was given the maximum punishment was given by Circuit Judge Philip J. Rarrick in Madison County Court. Scrum was shot while driving on Interstate 270 north of Granite City.

School board blasts Paul Simon

Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., was criticized by Superintendent of Schools Gib Walmsley and Board of Education President Monroe Worthen last week for making "irresponsible statements" about the school district. Walmsley said Simon's contention that 7-year-old Jason Robertson, a hemophiliac with AIDS-related complex, was forced to participate in contact sports was "ridiculous."

Bus changes to start Aug 29

On Monday, Bi-State Transit will eliminate one morning trip of the Fronton Express due to low ridership and will change the schedule of the Granite-Venice-East St. Louis route. Other changes will affect the Rosemont and Washington Park routes. Those who wish more information may call the Bi-State Transit Information line from 6 a.m. to 8 p.m. at 1-800-223-8755.

After using about 300 tons of crushed slag, the Nameeki Village Board is convinced that it is not an equivalent substitute and will change to standard limestone to complete its current paving project. The vote was unanimous to recind a contract with the East St. Louis Bituminous Fuel and Oil Co.

Tip of the hat

Jaime Converse

A tip of the hat to former resident Jaime Converse, a diabetic, who was honored with her own day Aug. 17 by Mayor Von Dee Cruse. The 12-year-old beauty contest winner now appears at fund-raisers for the Juvenile Diabetes foundation. With TV sportscaster Mike Bush, she will co-host the foundation's annual Walkathon in Forest Park in October. She is an A student who hopes to be a pediatrician. She has met Gov. Jim Thompson and addressed both houses of the state Legislature.

Quote of the week

"This is the kind of thing that affects people in the community, not only the people who knew them well, but those who knew them slightly," said Cathy Nevlin, a supervisor for Mental Health Services of Southern Madison County, about the deaths of five people, including three children, in an automobile accident Aug. 13 in Granite City.

Tell it like it is

Q: What is your opinion about efforts to ban a controversial film, such as "The Last Temptations of Christ," from movie houses?

Bernice C. Crimmins

"I don't think the picture 'The Last Temptations of Christ' should be banned because it is fictional. If your religion forbids you to see it, then don't see it. No child should see it as it may damage the way a child sees Christ, and it is fictional and not the Gospel account. It is a failure because of the director's failure to evoke a credible picture of the human side of Christ."

—1530 Fifth St., Madison

Mary Pace

"I think the movie should be banned. Jesus Christ is very special to me and I don't believe that secular movie makers who have no real idea of who Jesus is should attempt to film his life."

Police station planned

By Valerie Evenden
Staff writer

PONTON BEACH — Bids on constructing a police building will be accepted until 3:30 p.m. today at Village Hall, 3910 Illinois 111.

The bids will be opened at a public meeting of the Buildings Committee.

Village trustees propose placing the building on nine acres of the village owns in the 4100 block of Illinois 111, opposite Soccer for Fun, Clerk Mary Warren said Thursday.

Specifications are available at Henderson Associates, Architects, 915 Hillsboro Road, Edwardsville, Warren said.

The plans require a 40-by-60 building containing 1,019 square feet, two holding cells, a radio room, dispatching center, and office area.

The Police Department, in Village Hall, has no secure area to hold prisoners, a primary reason that a new station is proposed.

Prosecutor on stand in police testing case

EDWARDSVILLE — Madison County State's Attorney Dick Allen went on the witness stand Tuesday to show he did not misrepresent the case when applying for a special prosecutor in the Partney-Reader-Rosenburg case.

In a pretrial motion hearing in Third Judicial Circuit Court, Allen testified he thought a special prosecutor was needed because he did not feel comfortable being a witness in a case his office was prosecuting.

Clyde L. Kuehn, a former St. Clair County state's attorney, is special prosecutor in the case heard by Circuit Judge James K. Donovan, Belleville.

Congressional race spending debated

By Jack C. Ventimiglia
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — What's new about one candidate outspending the other by 12-1 in the 21st Congressional District election Aug. 9 is that Bob Gaffner, R-Greenville, is being called the big spender.

Gaffner said he was the underdog in campaign advertising spending, but Dave Wagner, campaign manager for U.S. Rep. Jerry Costello, D-Bellefonte, debated that Monday. Wagner said Gaffner's campaign paid an estimated $300,000 for advertising compared to about $25,000 spent by the winner, Costello.

Gaffner said Monday he would have to "pad" his Federal Election Commission spending report to get up to the spending figures released by Costello's campaign.

Gaffner said for everything involved in his congressional campaign he spent no more than $275,000 compared to his estimate that Costello spent $800,000 to $1 million in competing three times this year in Congressional races. In addition to the special general election, Costello also competed in special and regular party primaries.

"Gaffner's" trying to look like the poor little guy who has no money," Wagner said. In the special general election, on advertising we spent about $25,000. When you throw that up against a $300,000 barrage ... it's a drop in the bucket," Wagner said.

Gaffner said, "I don't know where they're getting those figures. Some of those (Costello) signs cost them a couple of hundred bucks apiece. I don't care if they bought those signs Jan. 1, they're still part of the campaign."

Wagner said he did not know how much Costello's campaign has spent in the three elections, Costello and Gaffner were allowed to raise funds in each campaign.

Wagner said the Republican National Congressional Committee spent heavily on Gaffner's behalf in the last two weeks of the campaign.

"That's a typical Republican strategy nationwide," he said.

Gaffner said his estimated campaign spending of up to $275,000 was inclusive of what the national committee contributed.

"We had to rely a great deal on the $5, $10 and $25 contributor," Gaffner said.

Wagner said he doubts Gaffner can expect the same level of committee support for the Nov. 8 election. Wagner predicted spending levels for both candidates would be about equal.

"Now we should be on about a level playing field," Wagner said.

Gaffner said he will continue to get committee support, though his spending is by law limited to $45,000 in the coming election. Also limiting contributions, Gaffner said, is that some people do not want their names on the FEC campaign spending report.

By law, the name of anyone giving $200 or more to a campaign becomes public. Gaffner said he may form a "1999 Club" so contributors do not have to declare themselves.

Gaffner said his report is due in mid-October, but that he hopes to complete it this weekend.

Wagner said Gaffner was "weak" to allow outsiders from the national committee to run a negative campaign.

"We prefer to say we're truth slinging, not mud slinging," Gaffner said.

Gaffner said if it was weak to accept the committee's help, then Costello should not risk appearing weak by accepting help from the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee.

Some obsolete bases may be closed

To the editor:

Those of you who happen to be vacationing through Virginia this summer might consider dropping in for a visit at historic Fort Monroe.

When I say historic, I am not quibbling with words. Fort Monroe was built to defend our country from the British in the War of 1812. It even has a moat around it.

Blunk your eyes for a moment and you can imagine a host of knights in shining armor drawn up in formation before the drawbridge, preparing to lay siege.

The only trouble is—you might not get a guided tour. You see, Fort Monroe is not a tourist mecca for history buffs. To the contrary, it is part and parcel of our national defense system, a real live military fort maintained at an annual expense of $186 million.

Exactly what purpose, you may well ask, does a fort with a moat serve in our computerized, high-tech defense system of the 1980s? The answer, of course, is none whatever. Fort Monroe, like a good many other of our 4,000 military installations, is a redundant artifact of a historical curiosity kept open year after year only because Congress cannot bring itself to shut down any military base, no matter how useless it may be to national defense.

There is a perfectly sensible explanation for this recurrent folly. Every base represents federal dollars and jobs to politicians within whose districts or states it happens to be located.

Some of the most outspoken budget cutters in Congress get positively tongue-tied when it comes to shutting down obsolete bases in their own backyards.

Indeed, this particular form of waste has become so imbedded in Congress that few bother to complain about it anymore. I have alluded to it from time to time, but only out of habit, not in the hope that anything might actually be done about it.

So imagine my surprise when the House approved a law that could lead to the shutdown of some obsolete bases. The legislation, designed by Rep. Richard Armey, R-Texas, authorized the Defense Department to recommend a list of bases to be closed.

The secretary of Defense will then have 15 days to decide whether the bases should be closed. If he decides to proceed with the shutdown, Congress can interfere only by voting to reject the action.

It is safe to assume the president would veto any such rejection, so Congress would need a two-thirds majority to obstruct the closings.

The Senate has already enacted similar legislation, so this unexpected breakthrough is on the verge of becoming law.

It isn't often that our elected representatives display such political courage, especially when it comes to cutting back on pork, and even more especially in an election year. Congratulations are in order. I heartily extend mine.

Flaws in Panama Canal treaty still unresolved

To the editor:

As the situation in Panama continues to simmer, Big Media's television, radio and press provide a steady stream of experts to predict the causes and cures.

Not a single one of these pundits, however, seems to recognize two extremely basic points: (1) Panama's secret counter-reservation to the 1977 Panama Canal Treaty voids unilateral U.S. defense rights; it was never seen officially by the U.S. Senate.

(2) The future security and U.S. control of this American-built and still American-owned "Crossroads of the World" will affect directly and substantially the future security of the entire United States, and the Canal will never be secure under an unstable government such as Panama, the land of endemic revolution and endless political turmoil.

The experts are focusing on such things as more economic pressure to topple the despotic General Manuel Antonio Noriega; a commando-type capture of Noriega in order to bring him to justice on charges of drug-trafficking and gun-running; and then formation of a "government of reconciliation" until elections in May 1989.

These are short-term and superficial "solutions." They do not address the most basic issue of all: Unconstitutional treaties under both the U.S. and Panama constitutions must be renegotiated in order to preserve and honor the U.S. Constitution.

These violations of the U.S. Constitution permitted President Carter to get "ratified treaties" that could be had no other way: After advising Omar Torrijos, Panama's military dictator, to write his own reservation about U.S. defense "intervention," Carter failed to submit Torrijos's secret reservation for a U.S. Senate vote as required by Article II of our Constitution.

In disposing of the Canal, Mr. Carter failed to observe Article IV of the Treaty, which requires that both houses of Congress to approve, not just the Senate.

And in abrogating the original 1903 Treaty, Mr. Carter failed to follow Article VI, which equates treaties with laws as the law of the land, and thereby requiring treaties to be terminated by a vote of both houses of Congress, not by the Senate alone.

Since the president negotiates treaties, Carter himself was primarily to blame for these three violations of the U.S. Constitution.

As for Panama, Article 183 of its Constitution was not observed in signing the treaties: Torrijos signed and he was not the president as constitutionally required. Article 272 was also violated when the six substantive changes added by the U.S. Senate were not submitted to a plebiscite.

The 1977 treaties are illegal under international law, as Section 20.3 of the 1969 Vienna Convention on the Law of Treaties requires a reservation to be accepted by all parties; and, of course, Panama's secret reservation was hidden from the U.S. Senate.

There are many other irregularities and illegalities in the Carter signing of these important treaties, but the foregoing provides sufficient cause for a Congressional investigation except for one thing: No one should hold his breath waiting for our present Congress to investigate the Carter Administration's misdeed.

But this political cover-up does

State should support education

To the editor:

For two decades now, parents, taxpayers, teachers and school boards have lamented the fact that the Illinois does not provide enough money for education. So the local property taxpayers are forced to do it.

This reliance on the property tax for school funding pits the needs of children against those least able to pay; namely, senior citizens and others on fixed incomes, the unemployed, small businesses struggling to survive and those whose wages have fallen from union scale to minimum wage. It's a "lose-lose" situation.

Yet during the past 20 years, the percentage of school funding by the state government has fallen from about 47 percent to 38 percent and is expected to drop again this year.

Let's change this to a "win-win" situation by demanding that the governor and legislators pass a state constitutional amendment requiring that the state will provide 51 percent of educational funding.

If you agree, cut this letter out of the paper, sign your name and address and send it to me at 2440 3rd St., East Moline, Ill., 61244.

I will take them en masse to the legislative leaders in Springfield.

Detours add to summer road hazards

To the editor:

Americans are expected to take 258 million vacation trips in motor vehicles this summer, according to the AAA-Chicago Motor Club.

Fatigue, tailgaters and detours on unfamiliar roads risks that drivers may encounter while traveling to their destinations.

If you become tired while driving, stop the car and change drivers. Fatigue, sometimes called "highway hypnosis," usually sets in after driving two to four hours.

If you are driving alone and need a break, wait until you reach a rest area or other safe roadside place.

Do not panic if another vehicle tailgates your car. If you are being followed too closely on a two-lane highway, slow down so the vehicle can pass.

However, if the vehicle refuses to pass, drive until you can pull off the road safely. On a multi-lane expressway, you can slow down to allow the other vehicle to pass and then pull over into another lane.

Motorists may be forced to use alternate routes when heavily-traveled intersections and highways are being repaired. Although alternate routes may be inconvenient, they offer the opportunity for motorists to discover new sights in out-of-the-way places.

If you are traveling at night in an area that is unfamiliar, you may want to stop and wait for daylight, when you will feel more confident.

Reform of buying process essential

To the editor:

As a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, I am deeply concerned with the revelations of yet another procurement scandal at the Department of Defense and the Department of the Navy.

Recent scandals involving massive cost overruns and defective equipment throughout the military inventory have jeopardized our readiness and ability to sustain ourselves in wartime.

The current scandal — potentially the worst in Defense Department history — makes it urgently necessary to act.

The history of procurement scandals at the Defense Department makes it crystal clear that the current system is flawed and that reform is essential.

I have, therefore, sponsored new legislation which will centralize authority and responsibility for acquisition policy in a single office.

The main intent of this legislation is to strengthen the role of the undersecretary of Defense for acquisition and establish the undersecretary as the procurement czar within the Defense Department.

It will also establish parameters for contractors, consultants and government officials involved in defense procurement.

I will also push for immediate hearings in the Armed Services Committee so that we can enact these long-overdue reforms.

We can only legislate so much against greed and corruption. There will always be some individuals who will put personal gain above all else. But if we re-establish the integrity of the procurement system, we can eliminate the worst aspects of the "buddy system" and other faults caused by lax management.

I have already authored several pieces of legislation designed to correct the deficiencies in defense acquisition practices. I introduced legislation in 1986 which created the office of the Under Secretary of Defense for Acquisition.

When I introduced this legislation, I was fought tooth and nail by then Defense Secretary Weinberger and former Navy Secretary Lehman.

I wanted this office to be responsible for supervising the entire defense acquisition system, but the services resisted this essential reform and this resulted in my proposed legislation being watered down.

In addition to the legislation creating the Under Secretary of Defense for Acquisition office, I sponsored amendments to last year's defense authorization bill that addressed other major issues which related to reform of the defense procurement process.

Both amendments were intended to promote the fair and even-handed application of all defense acquisition policies and regulations.

The first amendment clarified the appropriate relationship between the U.S. government and contractors and subcontractors involving technical data rights.

The second amendment involved the appropriate policy for procuring and producing special tooling and producing special test equipment.

These amendments were also opposed by elements within the Defense Department who are now subjects of the investigation into procurement abuses.

I assure you I will continue to push for procurement reforms. We must eliminate the outflow mentality that appears to prevail in some services, where rules and laws appear to have been made to be broken.

The intent and letter of the law must be allowed to prevail over expediency and personal gain.

Quad City County eyes food inspector

By John Milazzo

EDWARDSVILLE — A Madison County Board committee has been authorized to study possible formation of a county food sanitation department.

Such a department would perform routine inspections of eating establishments.

The board on Aug. 17 approved a resolution offered by county Health Institutions Committee Chairman Bob Stille, D-Edwardsville, authorizing the committee to confer with the Illinois Department of Public Health and other sources to check the feasibility of a county food inspection program.

Such a program would have been included in a county health department but a resolution calling for creation of a health department was decisively defeated at the board's June 15 meeting.

After the August board meeting, County Director of Administration James K. Monday said county officials have been told "it is possible to have a county food inspection department without having a health department."

"It will be up to the committee to find out if that's true and, if so, how we can go about getting it done."

Stille, who has said that the county already provides most of the services that would be offered through a full health department, opposed the proposed formation of a health department by board resolution.

Stille said Aug. 17, "We have acknowledged all along that a restaurant food inspection program was needed and necessary. But I don't see that you have to have a health department to get that accomplished."

The committee will confer with John Pitzer, regional director for the Department of Public Health, to learn recommended methods for personnel hiring, schedules for fees that may be charged to eating establishments, state standards and other aspects of a program, Stille said.

Stille said the committee must also learn whether it will be possible to conform with state standards in a cost-effective way.

He said that as currently conceived by him and others on the committee, "it would probably involve the hiring of four inspectors and a supervisor and some administrative costs."

"We're probably going to be looking at $100,000 to $125,000 annually and it doesn't look like we'll be getting any assistance (with program funding) from the state."

There are approximately 1,400 eating establishments in the county; none of those are routinely inspected for cleanliness, Stille said, adding that the state will step in to perform inspections only when there has been a complaint regarding a specific eating place.

Stille said that under tentative plans the program would be funded from county coffers and from a schedule of fees levied for inspections. "We don't know how that schedule would be set up. It may be based on the amount of seating for customers," he said.

Meanwhile, board member Harold Byers, D-Highland, an advocate of a county health department, complained bitterly after the meeting that the plan "is nothing more than another step to short-circuit a health department."

"This is the standard dodge by Stille. They're going to hire food inspectors, that's fine. But I don't see what that does for little boys and girls who are in need of inoculations and who aren't getting them."

"I still say we need a full-time health department," Byers said.

Blood drive at SEMC succeeds

St. Elizabeth Medical Center, 2100 Madison Ave., is thanking members of the community who donated blood at the American Red Cross sponsored blood drive held at SEMC on Aug. 11.

"We had 119 successful donations. That exceeded our 100 unit goal," said Ruth Ann Gabriel, SEMC blood drive chairperson.

"A total of 137 people attempted to donate. The Red Cross and all the volunteers, associates and community members who gave their time made the blood drive a success."

Enrollment drops, but turn-around expected

By Paul Guggina
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — Enrollment in School District 9 continues to decline steadily, Superintendent Gib Walmsley said Tuesday.

Between October 1983 and June 1988, the number of students dropped from 9,250 to 8,213 — a decline of 11.2 percent — according to a five-year enrollment report compiled by administrators.

Walmsley said enrollment has been declining since 1972, when it peaked at about 15,500 students.

The district is losing financial aid from the state because of the decline. This year, state aid was cut $382,000 because of the shrinking enrollment. In the past two years the district has missed out on about $1 million in state aid, Walmsley said.

But there may be an end in sight. A mobile home park, several small subdivisions and military housing unit that will bring new families to the district are planned for the enrollment area, Walmsley said.

And there are positive signs already, he said. Niedringhaus Elementary School has shown a slight increase in enrollment in each of the past five years. And in June, the district's total kindergarten enrollment was up 25 from June 1987.

"The kindergarten enrollment showed a positive turn last year for the first time. We're not sure what that means," Walmsley said.

"It looks to me like the community we may have some growth, and I'm trying to determine how much and how rapid," a committee of administrators is being formed to look into the enrollment trend, Walmsley said.

Grigsby Junior High School suffered the largest decline in the five-year span covered by the enrollment report, losing nearly 24 percent of its students since June 1984.

The decline in enrollment for the rest of the schools during the past five years, with the June enrollment shown in parentheses, follows:

Granite City High School (2,508), 11.1 percent; Conledge Junior High School (788), 9.2 percent; Wilson Elementary School (511), 13.8 percent; Webster Elementary School (338), 8.6 percent; Prather Elementary School (664), 14.2 percent; Parkview Elementary School (422), 5.2 percent; Mitchell Elementary School (535), 10.7 percent; Maryville Elementary School (466), 9.9 percent; Marshall Elementary School (343), 5.5 percent; and Frohardt Elementary School (496), 6.6 percent.

cheating on a 1985 promotion examination.

The three were indicted by a grand jury in January but the indictments were later, separately, dropped.

Kuehn was appointed and, a day later, issued information charging the three with conspiracy and official misconduct.

Leon Scroggins, Partney's attorney, and Melroy B. Hutnick, Kuehn's attorney, claim Allen misrepresented the case to Madison County Chief Circuit Judge P.J. O'Neill in order to obtain the special position and that, as a result, neither Kuehn nor Donovan have jurisdiction in the case.

On the stand, Allen said he had little personal knowledge of the case because it had been handled by his assistant, Richard Rybak. Allen said a special prosecutor was needed because he thought members of his staff would be called by the defense.

About 10:20 a.m., Donovan sent a bailiff in search of Rybak to clarify the matter.

"Defense attorneys said Allen did not need a special prosecutor because Partney had stated no conflict of interest position would be taken if Allen testified during the case his office was prosecuting."

Allen said that because he has not been personally involved in the case, he was not aware Partney had waived questions of a conflict of interest. However, Allen said he still would have called a special prosecutor because he had been made credible testifying in a case his staff was prosecuting.

The hearing remained in progress at press time Tuesday.

Surprise choice of Quayle wins support of Illinoisans

By Edward T. Hearn

NEW ORLEANS — Who is Dan Quayle?

Some people in the Illinois GOP delegation didn't know the answer. And even a delegate or two from Indiana, Quayle's home state, couldn't add much to the silence other than a few scattered details.

As George Bush's choice Tuesday to become his Republican running mate, two-term U.S. Sen. Dan Quayle was a surprise pick, a potential vice president the American people know less well than the other politicians Bush was said to have also considered.

That list included Sen. Bob Dole of Kansas, Rep. Jack Kemp of New York and Gov. George Deukmejian of California, national figures all.

"I am very surprised, quite frankly, I didn't think Dan was among the top runners for the job," said Illinois Rep. Henry Hyde, R-6th, who wanted Kemp on the ticket but said Quayle was an excellent selection nevertheless.

In choosing Quayle, Bush turned to a 41-year-old farm belt senator. Big 10 state U.S. senator as one Illinois delegate put it, Quayle entered the Senate in 1981 after unseating the popular Birch Bayh, D, a three-term incumbent.

During his first term and since his 1986 re-election with 61 percent of the vote, Quayle has emerged as a youthful proponent of Reagan-style policies and programs, primarily from his seat on the Senate Armed Services Committee.

Instead of finding someone with whom his views would often clash, as did Democratic nominee Gov. Michael Dukakis when he reached for the more conservative Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, Bush went with a running mate whose views mesh nicely with his own.

Quayle, since 1985, has cast votes supporting the production of MX missiles, aid to the Nicaraguan contras, and passage of a balanced budget amendment to the Constitution — all of them central issues for the Reagan administration.

Bush's decision was the biggest news to break out of the 34th Republican National Convention.

Once word circulated in the media, Quayle was attractive, and a good campaigner with solid conservative credentials, Illinois GOP officials and delegates applauded Bush for capitalizing on the suspense surrounding his decision with a bold political stroke.

"I think he will help Bush in Illinois and Ohio. With the South and West, Illinois and Indiana, that's the ball game in the Electoral College. You put a lock on the Electoral College," said Don Weber, Bush delegate from the Edwardsville-Carpenter area.

"Quayle is very compatible with George Bush," said Dr. Ed Ragdale, GOP state committee chairman in the 21st District.

"I think Quayle can help us with women and perhaps with youth. Apparently, Quayle does very well among those groups in Indiana," he added.

Alton resident and at-large delegate Phyllis Schiller said she knew Quayle by reputation and found him an acceptable running mate.

"I think he brings youth, attractiveness and a conservative image. I was supporting Jack Kemp, but (Quayle) sort of looks like Jack Kemp," said Schaffly, who said along with many others that Quayle's boyish good looks will help win votes in November.

Gov. James R. Thompson, who was mentioned as a potential running mate until he withdrew his name from consideration last Friday, threw his full support behind the prospective GOP ticket.

"It's a good choice. (Quayle) is a superb campaigner," Thompson said, remembering Quayle's stunning upset of Bayh in 1980.

"He is from our area. He can speak to the hopes and aspirations of our area," Thompson said.

Others in the Illinois delegation were not as familiar with Quayle, but they said his name and face would become more recognizable with national television exposure in the final months of the campaign.

"Who is Dan Quayle? That is the question everyone is asking. People aren't that familiar with him," said Illinois 10th District delegate Kathleen Parker, adding she had tracked Quayle's rapid rise in Indiana politics.

"I think he is young and vigorous and has good attributes. I think he is a very attractive candidate."

Later in the convention, controversy developed over Quayle's record in the Indiana National Guard in 1969, when many young men were being inducted into the service for the Vietnam War.

Quayle was called to active duty six months on active duty and then five years on reserve duty while he was attending law school.

•Pool — 20 treated after chlorine leak at pool

Mark Smiddy, 29, 1924 Lynn Ave., had been swimming with his wife, Janet, and their two children when the approximately 50 people at the pool were told to leave.

"They said hold your nose and run," Janet Smiddy said.

Sykes said that because gates in the fence around the pool are kept locked, the crowd had to go through the chlorine fumes in the pool building to escape.

"That was the last place they should have gone," Sykes said.

"Everyone hurried and got out," Mark Smiddy said, "but I don't think anybody was stepping over anybody... I was like everybody who came out coughing."

Sykes said the gates are opened only for maintenance workers.

Lonnie Chapman, 11, 2465 Adams St., complained the chlorine fumes bothered him.

"I was like I'm ready to explode or something," he said. Daniele Williams, 12, 2619 Sheridan Ave., said she knew what was going on when they one began leaving the pool.

"I knew it was a chlorine leak because they had one before," she said.

No one was injured when chlorine leaked from a tank when a hose broke at the pool Aug. 3. On Aug. 17, the pool closed because much chlorine was poured into the pool, resulting in murky water.

Sykes said a safer chlorination system could be purchased for the pool, but there is no money for it. A referendum to build a new pool failed in 1986.

"This is part of a 50-year-old pool's problems, but this is an approval (chlorination) system. If we had a new pool, we would have a much better system," Sykes said.

There is no release in the near future for another referendum to build a new public pool, he said, but he said many homeowners have pools, and people do not want to pay more in taxes.

"I'd love to do it, but I just don't know if the economy's right.... I just don't know if we could ever do it."

The pool closed for the day following the incident Sunday and remained closed Monday. The pool re-opened Tuesday.

Medical Center on Monday released the names of those injured in the incident: Timothy Williams, Richard Sunde, Epperson, Tamara Sparks, David Edwards, Julia Marsala, Molly Williams, Richard Sunde, and Kimberley Smay; kept overnight for observation and released Monday were Shale, Liz Loman, Jody Marsala, Jeremy Yeager, Diane Yeager, Jessica Foster, Nicholas Antonovich, Christopher Smay and Avia Marsala.

No tax raise key to victory

By Edward T. Hearn

P-RJ Washington bureau

NEW ORLEANS — Illinois officials and delegates reacted to Vice President George Bush's acceptance speech Thursday said the new Republican presidential nominee laid the basis for victory in November with his pledges to expand human freedom abroad and avoid higher taxes at home.

"I liked his sincerity. I liked the way he covered the issues and expressed his loyalty to Reagan and appeared to take command for the coming term," said Phyllis Schiller, at-large delegate from Alton.

Schaffly and other Illinois delegates said Bush delivered one of his best speeches, leaving an indelible imprint on the 34th Republican National Convention, which closed Thursday night with the address and the nomination of Indiana Sen. Dan Quayle as the vice presidential candidate.

"Bush's speech was very impressive, both in content and delivery," said Jeff Miller, chief of staff to Gov. James R. Thompson, who nominated Bush.

"He did a good job. He came across strong. He doesn't always win his speeches," he said.

In a 50-minute address, Bush delivered a message of Reagan's legacy of "economic growth" and military might. He accused Democrats of promising more than they could deliver, warning that a vote for Dukakis could turn the clock back to the 1930s, a time of high unemployment and high interest rates and adversarial allies.

Bush compared the economy of the late 1970s to the economy of the early 1980s, saying that the Republican policies eventually healed. Pless for another chance for the Democrats, he said, should be rejected, and "they're lucky we don't let them do it."

Bush said he would lead a "broadside that drew one of his biggest cheers."

Bush said his administration would continue economic prosperity and said his goal was the creation of 30 million jobs during the next four years.

"On jobs, my mission is: 30 in 8. Three million jobs in the next eight years," he said, promising to "complete the mission" of being elected Nov. 8.

In a promise he's made at other events, Bush repeated he is committed to holding the line on taxes. "Congress will push me to raise taxes.... And I'll can state that I will read my lips — no new taxes, period," Bush said.

On the foreign front, Bush said peace through strength would remain his credo, with emphasis on the expansion of human freedom. American-Soviet relations, he said, would follow a path of "prudent skepticism" in dealing with Soviet General Secretary Mikhail Gorbachev.

"The tremors in the Soviet world continue," Bush said. "The hard earth there has not yet settled. Perhaps what is happening will change our world forever."

He claimed he should be the man to succeed Reagan, invoking the name of Franklin D. Roosevelt's injunction that it was wrong to change horses in midstream.

"When you have to change horses in midstream," he said, "doesn't it make sense to switch to the one who's going the same direction?"

Fulfilling his stated pledge Wednesday to articulate clearly his vision for the country, Bush drew sharp distinctions between himself and Gov. Michael Dukakis, the Democratic nominee.

Bush, saying he respects "old-fashioned common sense," repeated his positions in favor of school prayer, gun possession and capital punishment, and his opposition to abortion and easy parole for violent criminals.

"I like what's been tested and found to be true," Bush said. He ended his speech with the pledge of Allegiance, which Dukakis has fought as a school requirement.

"That's the best speech he has ever given, a superb political speech, a lot of message there," said Dr. Ed Ragdale, 21st District GOP state central committee chairman.

"It's got to help Bush's standing in the polls," he added.

Bush delegate Don Weber, Carpenter, an Edwardsville lawyer and judge candidate, also spoke on the speech.

"More than being a good speech... this was a very revealing speech for Bush. I think he is the man for the Oval Office, Weber said.

County Board tags Touchette as its chairman

BELLEVEILLE — Centreville Township Supervisor Francis Touchette was elected 26-1 Monday by the St. Clair County Board to be its chairman.

The dissenting vote was cast by Frank Boyce, D-Belleville, who said that six years ago the old cryogenic, practiced by the board was being phased out with the election of new board members, but that Touchette's election Monday returned the board to that practice.

No one responded to Boyce's allegation.

During his acceptance speech, Touchette said East St. Louis was a "dead city" and he proposed renovating it through securing federal funds for job creation, education programs for the public, and riverfront development.

Touchette said his age should not be considered a factor in his ability to perform his duties because he is in good shape, and he is two years younger than President Ronald Reagan.

Touchette's appointment as board chairman was predicted prior to the election by board members.

The public will vote in November 1990 for a board chairman.

Granite Citian will study in Jerusalem

Maria Schrader, a student at Earlham College, Richmond, Ind., will spend the fall studying in Jerusalem. She is the daughter of Martin and Joyce Schrader, 5116 Maryville Road, Granite City.

The Jerusalem program is designed to provide students close and extended contact with the issues of peace and justice.

The program is located in the city of Jerusalem, and draws upon the resources of the city, as well as Israeli and Palestinian leaders and educators throughout the West Bank.

Students will take courses focusing on various proposals to achieve a fair and abiding resolution to the current conflicts of that region.

They will also participate in work camps in Israeli kibbutzim and Palestinian olive orchards.

Earlham College offers 28 off-campus programs in 20 different countries — including England, Germany, Israel, Spain, France, Kenya and Japan. While only 1 percent of the nation's undergraduates study outside the United States, 65 percent of each graduating class at Earlham has studied abroad.

Founded in 1847, Earlham is an institution in three parts: the college, a liberal arts undergraduate school in Richmond; the Earlham School of Religion, a Quaker graduate seminary also located in Richmond; and Corner Prairie, a living history museum outside of Indianapolis. An overall commitment to cross-cultural education unites the three.

Costello tells area's needs to Dukakis

BELLEVOUE — U.S. Rep. Jerry Costello on Friday accepted an invitation from Gov. Michael Dukakis, Democratic nominee for president, to join him on the first leg of a whistle-stop Amtrak tour through Illinois, Missouri and Arkansas.

Costello prepared and submitted a list of economic development agenda items "crucial to the 21st Congressional District" and said he is looking forward to working on the projects with "the next president of the United States."

Costello Aug. 9 and sworn in Aug. 11. Costello applauded Dukakis for "recognizing the importance of Illinois and particularly Southwestern Illinois" in his presidential bid.

"The next president underscored his commitment to our area by scheduling this very important trip into Illinois' 21st District. We need a president who understands what it will take to make this area an even better place to live," Costello said.

He said his list of agenda items includes projects such as a new Clark Bridge in Alton, continued support for Granite City's Price Center and Belleville's Scott Air Force Base, construction of light-rail transit, improvement of the Metro East Sanitary District's pumping stations, and modernization of (See DUKAKIS, Page 10A)

County hires firm for asbestos work

By John Milazzo

EDWARDSVILLE — The Madison County Board has retained a company to perform asbestos management services in county buildings.

The board on Aug. 17 approved a resolution which gives an initial payment of $7,000 to Mathes Asbestos Services to handle asbestos-related problems in some county buildings.

The company recently completed an assessment of asbestos present in county buildings. It found that, while some asbestos-containing materials were in good shape, some were not.

County Director of Administration James K. Monday said the asbestos detected in buildings is typically contained in wrappings around steam pipes and other heating equipment.

Asbestos has been found to be a cause of lung cancer.

In other board action, a resolution establishing a $100 monthly rate of pay for the three-member county Sheriff's Merit Board was approved.

Previously, members received $25 per meeting and ordinarily met four times per month.

"But sometimes they met five, six or eight times," Monday said.

There have also been some instances when the board has met less than four times in a calendar month, Monday said.

The County Board also approved a $100,000 loan from Community Development Block Grant funds to The Steel Works Corporation for a steel-splitting operation that will locate in Granite City and create an estimated 26 full-time jobs.

The money will be loaned for a period of five years at 3 percent interest and will be used by the company for purchase of equipment.

St. Peter preschool accepting enrollees

Enrollment is being taken at St. Peter School for 3- and 4-year-old children for classes beginning Sept. 6 and continuing through May.

The preschool program, licensed by the State of Illinois, operates under a revised curriculum in the Educational Building at St. Peter Evangelical United Church of Christ, 2103 Cleveland Blvd.

Tuition charges are nominal and additional information may be obtained by calling the church Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to noon at 877-1904.

The school will operate one session for 3-year-olds on Tuesday and Thursday and another session for 4-year-olds on Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings from 9 to 11:30.

"I have said many times throughout my campaign for Congress that bringing jobs to our area and promoting the economic growth of Southwestern Illinois will be at the top of my priority list in Congress.

"I am very pleased to have the opportunity to discuss these important projects with the next president," Costello said.

Democratic Dukakis is opposed Nov. 8 by Republican George Bush, winner of a five-month term in Congress. Democrat Costello will oppose Republican Robert Gaffner for two-year term in the fall election.

Workshop on stress scheduled

"Stress...how to deal with it more effectively, and the coping strategies to help understand and alleviate it" is the topic of a lifestyle-changes seminar being offered through St. Elizabeth Medical Center's Going Strong Wellness Center, 22nd and Iowa streets.

The class will be offered on four consecutive Thursdays, Sept. 29 through Oct. 20, at 7 p.m. in the Wellness Center classroom.

Taught by Bob Turck, an SEMC social worker who has an extensive background in the teaching of stress management, this seminar deals with stress in nine different areas and "develops innovative coping strategies," Turck said.

"This is a very creative and in-depth seminar," he said. "Participants gain a deeper understanding of themselves as they learn their personal stressors and personal symptoms of stress."

"This seminar also incorporates rational thinking techniques, assertiveness training, time and energy management, and relaxation therapy. Its goal is to help individuals learn to deal more effectively with the stress in their own lives."

Cost for the series is $45 per person. Participants receive a variety of materials to use in managing daily stress.

To register, persons may call the Wellness Center at 798-3WEL. Since enrollment is limited to 30, individuals are being encouraged to register as soon as possible.

Farmers' diesel plight may be resolved soon

By Theodore M. Doolittle
P-R/J Washington bureau

WASHINGTON — The House has passed a provision which would permit farmers and other off-highway diesel users to pay the fuel without paying a 15-cent-per-gallon federal highway user tax.

Since April 1, off-road users of diesel fuel, including builders, highway contractors and oil field drillers who are exempt from the tax, have been required to pay it and then file for a refund from the government.

A congressional source said American farmers use about three billion gallons of diesel oil each year. Under the existing law, farmers were required to pay the U.S. about $450 million annually in unused taxes.

The current payment plan requires wholesalers rather than retailers to pay the tax. The plan was designed to increase compliance by reducing the number of taxpayers. But farm state legislators rebelled at the red tape and temporary loss of money.

"Farmers have never owed the tax, and they never should have had to pay it," said Sen. Paul Simon, cosponsor of a similar Senate measure.

The Illinois State Office in Washington estimated Illinois farms used an average of $941 worth of diesel fuel in 1986. That puts the total 1986 diesel bill for Illinois' 83,000 farms at around $78 million.

Rep. Lane Evans, D-Rock Island, was an original sponsor of the provision, which was attached to a sweeping revision of the 1986 Tax Code.

Rep. Robert Michel, R-Peoria, also supported the bill, and issued a statement which called the current system "an example of the worst kind of government."

"To deprive farmers of operating capital for several months as these claims are processed makes it all the harder for them to keep up with highly competitive foreign markets, and it's simply unfair to penalize them just for the sake of making this tax easier to collect from other users," Michel added.

Sen. Alan Dixon joined in supporting the provision, but said it did not go far enough. State and local governments and educational institutions also exempted from the tax are still required to pay the tax up front and then wait up to a year for the Internal Revenue Service to return their money," he said.

State hopes to attract more movie production

A task force appointed by Gov. James R. Thompson has released results of a comprehensive study on the film industry in Illinois.

The study identifies changes in the industry and makes recommendations for future growth in Illinois. Film production in this state has slumped in recent months after attaining a high volume.

"The film industry is important to Illinois," said Thompson. "We have worked hard to build a reputation for our state, and we have been successful."

"If we are to continue that record of success, we must make periodic assessments of our efforts. We will take the findings of the study into consideration and work to promote Illinois for future film projects."

The study discussed several advantages that Illinois has over other states, including effective film commissions, cooperative unions, and production facilities, services and equipment that can meet current and future demands.

The study made the following recommendations for improvement:

"Sponsorship and encouragement of formal and informal training programs to increase film production crew depth and skills in Illinois.

"A standard policy of free use of all city and state publicly funded facilities to combat rising movie costs compared to other states."

"Further consideration of a feature film investment pool composed of private and public funds."

"Rebate and sales tax exemptions."

Arthur D. Little Inc., an independent consulting firm, assisted with the study, which examined the Illinois film industry infrastructure, assessed the economic impact of film production activity, evaluated programs offered by the competition, and suggested additional incentives to encourage more filming in Illinois.

"I thank the members of our task force for their diligence and enthusiasm," Thompson said. "Recently, I had the opportunity to meet with local film unions to discuss the results of the study and listen to their comments. We agreed to continue to explore these and other new ideas for Illinois, including opportunities in the rapid growth of low-budget productions."

Caution urged in picking termite controllers

SPRINGFIELD — Illinois Department of Public Health Director Bernard J. Turnock has advised Illinois householders to exercise caution when selecting a pest-control company for termite extermination.

"Under Illinois law, pest-control operators must be licensed by the state health department," Dr. Turnock said.

He advised householders to obtain bids from at least two other companies before signing a contract for controlling termites or other wood-damaging insects.

"There have been instances of individuals falsely claiming to represent licensed pest-control companies who, in reality, defraud elderly and unsuspecting householders," Turnock said.

He said there are several ways to identify a fraudulent or unscrupulous pest-control solicitor:

"Failure to give the buyer a written three-day right to cancel."

Refusal or failure to provide the right to cancel an unsolicited contract is in violation of the Illinois Consumer Fraud and Deceptive Business Practices Act.

"Refusal to provide a written statement of the work the pest control company proposes to do. This should include a diagram that indicates the location of damage caused by termites or other wood-damaging organisms. It should also include information as to whether there is visual evidence of any active or inactive infestation."

"Emphasis on the fear of a house collapsing."

"Suggestion of secrecy concerning the job."

"House-to-house canvassing with a speedy inspection and evidence of infestation."

"Door-to-door canvassing by persons traveling in out-of-state vehicles that appear suddenly in the neighborhood."

"Quoting a charge for the job that depends on the number of gallons of chemical used."

"Offer of a 'discount' or 'commission' for leads on other termite jobs."

"A house-to-house canvass offering tree surgery, structural repair or other services that turn into a proposal to exterminate termites."

Partnerships benefit veterans

Partnerships with private industry, as well as federal and state agencies, have enabled the Veterans Administration in recent years to increase jobs, rehabilitation, counseling and training benefits for veterans.

"These joint projects reflect the spirit of cooperation to help veterans that exists between federal and state agencies with the private sector," Samuel L. Holmes, director of the Chicago VA Regional Office, said.

He said the sharing of resources means jobs for some veterans, many of them disabled, and training and counseling for others.

One partnership to benefit veterans is known as the Veterans Jobs Training Act. While federally funded through the Office of Management and Budget, the program enables the VA to pay employers half the salary of a veteran while participating in the program.

Holmes said 192 veterans in Illinois received $1,070,071 in Fiscal Year 1987. The payments were made to 164 employers in jobs ranging from auto mechanic to welder.

A similar program provides funds for an Illinois Rehabilitation Services Division employee to work in the VA's Veterans Service Office and help place disabled veterans. The program, which placed 4,829 veterans in hard-to-fill jobs in 1987, is funded through the Department of Labor and the Illinois Job Service Division.

A third partnership with the State of Illinois provides VA offices with school certification for approval of veterans' training. Holmes said 4,670 veterans applied for training last year.

"To duplicate the certification process would be too costly in a time of reduced budgets, or any other time," he said.

"These resource sharing agreements go largely unnoticed by the public and perhaps even by the veteran, but they certainly work — and they help the VA gain increased efficiency and productivity to provide veterans' benefits," Holmes said.

Inca influences impress in Cusco, Peru

By Pamela Selbert
Staff affiliate

Cusco, Peru, widely regarded as the archaeological capital of South America, is a picturesque town of red-tiled roofs, sagging balconies, and steep, narrow cobbled streets.

This antique town, which flourished in the 12th century, was the center of the Inca world. Centuries later, Spanish conquistadors, in their search for gold, took over the Inca capital.

They destroyed many Inca buildings but put their own structures on Inca foundations, creating an interesting architectural blend. Today, the two cultures, Inca and Spanish, are like a tightly woven fabric. The result is as intriguing as the primitive weavings and wall hangings popular there.

Cusco, an hour by air from Lima, fascinates from the first view through the plane window as you circle to land. It appears a hodgepodge of red roofs converging at all angles, filling the valley that is ringed by high green-black Andean peaks. Emerging from the plane you are immediately aware of the thin and crisp air. At 11,000 feet, visitors to Cusco are advised to eat light and not move too quickly, because the height can cause shortness of breath. But inhabitants also have come up with an antidote.

Tea made from coca leaves is said to invigorate the blood, and send extra oxygen to the brain, the guides said.

The tea is immediately available — the minute visitors reach the airport, hawkers selling Cuscan wares, including this tea, descend on tourists. Among their goods are boxes of the tea. Buy it, by all means. It costs only about 50 cents and, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, is legal to bring into the United States.

The blend of Inca and Spanish has taken place in the people as well as the architecture in this town, resulting in a blend called "Mestizo." Most of the people are Mestizo. (Cusco has a population of 150,000 to 200,000, depending on whom you ask, but it is probably closer to the lower figure.) In the surrounding hills live the "modern-day Incas" or Quechuan Indians. They flock to town in droves to sell their goods.

One of the first things the visitor will be shown is the Indian market on the Calle Santa Clara. Hundreds of merchants operate open stalls, and the variety of merchandise creates a riot of color several blocks long.

Once the "City of the Sun," and home of temples to that deity, Cusco now is home to 23 churches, many dating from early Spanish days.

On the outskirts of town, a short distance by bus, are the Inca ruins, most of which are reasonably intact. Most notable is the "Sacsaywaman," which overlooks the town. It has been called "the greatest achievement of primitive man in the Western Hemisphere."

After the shopping and sight-seeing is over, evening entertainment offers charming "ethnic" programs. Several small theaters around town have, nightly shows of local music performed by Quechuan Indians.

Interesting times to visit Cusco are at Corpus Christi Day, when a fiesta is held; and more dramatically, on Monday of Holy Week, when El Señor de los Temblores' procession moves through the streets. Tourists should prepare for unimaginable crowds. It seems everyone in town and from the surrounding hills turns out to follow the crucifix as it is carried through narrow streets that have been "painted" beautifully with flower petal designs.

The weather at Cusco varies little with changing seasons.

Expert tells how to beat jet lag

By Deborah Reinhardt
Staff affiliate

It is 4 a.m. and you, unable to sleep, pace the floor in your London hotel room. Fellow members of a Louvre tour move on to view priceless art but you fall asleep on a museum bench.

Millions of bleary-eyed travelers each year suffer from jet lag but a recent study shows how experienced travelers react to and cope with the disorder.

Last summer, the Upjohn Co., United Airlines and British Airways interviewed 784 travelers who, in two years had made at least two round trips, east to west, of 10,000 total miles. The results, made public this summer, showed 94 percent jetting across three or more time zones suffered from jet lag and the primary symptom was daytime fatigue.

Other problems from jet lag were inability to sleep at night, impaired concentration, slowed reflexes, irritability, upset digestion, hunger at odd hours and depression.

Dr. Michael Irwin, medical director of the United Nations, is traveling across the United States, with study results. He said U.S. travelers flying to Europe will feel the effects of jet lag more than on their return flight.

According to the study, our bodies are governed by a cycle of daily or circadian rhythms and Irwin said daylight keeps us on the correct cycle.

But most flights from the United States to Europe depart at night and land on the continent the next day. We cross at least six time zones, it is no wonder we are sleepy at our first European lunch.

Irwin suggested Americans allow one day of rest for every two time zones passed through. For example, Americans visiting London go through six time zones, so they should allow three days to adjust to the environment.

Irwin also suggested ways to combat jet lag. Before the flight overseas, get a good night's sleep, especially if a night flight is planned. Avoid stress before your trip. Do not save shopping or packing for the last minute.

While on the plane, do not drink alcohol. Twenty-eight percent of travelers surveyed said avoiding alcohol helped them cope with jet lag.

Irwin said dry air in the plane's cabin plus drinking alcohol dehydrates passengers, which worsens jet lag symptoms.

He also recommended exercising on the plane. Every couple of hours, get up and stretch and walk around the aircraft (unless of course the seatbelt sign is on because of turbulence).

"People don't really realize how dry it is on the plane or how important exercise is," Irwin said.

At your destination, drink a lot of fluid (alcohol now is permissible) and eat foods to which you are accustomed. And exercise outside.

Boo the monkey shines in film 'Monkey Shines'

By Frank Hunter
Staff affiliate

Anyone who sees George Romero's "Monkey Shines" (3 1/2 stars) might conclude that if man sprang from the apes he ought to spring once more and make it a safer distance.

Writer-director Romero previously blended wit and horror in 1968's "Night of the Living Dead," unleashing an army of flesh-eating zombies that terrorized seven people barricaded in a lonely farmhouse.

It was a good chiller but less subtle fiction than "Monkey Shines," which has a screenplay based on Michael Stewart's novel. The story draws on actual research into dual areas of animal behavior—the study of simian intelligence and the successful training of monkeys to each locale with major highways clearly marked, hours of operation, addresses and telephone numbers.

"Monkey Shines" is a rather gross and horrifying tale of the worst sort of man-monkey bonding that begins when college track star and promising law school student Allan Mann (Jason Beghe) is horribly maimed by a truck while jogging with a load of bricks on his back.

Following the tragedy, Allan awakens in a wheelchair that he controls by breathing into a slim plastic pipe called a "posson."

Brought home by a hovering mother played by Joyce Van Patten, he soon learns that his quadriplegic (Janine Turner) rejects the idea of life with a quadriplegic, and further wounds the wretched Allan by taking up with the smug young surgeon (Stanley Tucci) who saved his life.

Even more depressing is the mean-spirited nurse (Christine Forrest) his mother has hired to look after him.

Not in attendance at the dreary welcome home party is Allan's best friend Geoffrey (John Pankow), a scientist obsessed with expanding the intellect of apes, focusing on a capuchin monkey (the "organ grinder" like) that he has injected with serum from a human brain.

The fetching little beast named Ella is given to colleague Melanie (Kate McNeil), who teaches the monkey to groom and feed Allan and operate a stereo tape deck, which plays music and is programmed to open and close doors and windows and answer the telephone. Ella also turns the pages of his law books and does all the slovenly nurse's chores without getting the sulks.

Allan and Ella naturally, or perhaps unnaturally, become pals and the despised nurse is clearly in the way, along with her pet parakeet that is mysteriously squashed.

Allan and Ella have a real thing going, with Ella virtually taking possession of Allan's mind until trainer Melanie emerges as a competitor. Whereupon Ella reveals a nasty disposition, a lip that curls and terrifying little incisors that gleam in the dark.

Romero has designed a few savage encounters as Allan is plagued by ghastly dreams in which Ella apparently invades his body and soul to trigger awe, some outbursts of fury that no one can fathom.

The film's best performer is a simian named Boo who plays Ella. Boo was chosen by George Romero "because she's a born ham and always rose to the occasion when the camera was on her."

As things turn out, George Romero not only shocks the shorts off his fans but proves himself a master of understatement as well.

"Monkey Shines" is rated R. (Language, violence, sexual content.)

Time for Santa to make video check

By Richard Zacks
New York Times Syndicate

Video programming news comes in small packages. Miss Piggy, for instance, will be cheap this Christmas. Lorimar is launching a round of Jim Henson programs made exclusively for home video and priced at $14.95 each.

The "Jim Henson Playalong Video" series of six 90-minute tapes will debut in September with titles such as "Peek-A-Boo," aimed at the 3-and-under market, and "Mother Goose Stories" for 2- to 6-year-olds. Insiders in toyland are betting that the new hit of the bunch is "The Sing-Along, Dance-Along, Do-Along Video" starring a never-before-seen brother-and-sister Muppet team.

Want to see Madonna's bathroom? You're out of luck, but you can take a gander at the homes of Sophia Loren, George Hamilton and Donna Mills on "Celebrity Homes" (1988, Goodtimes, $9.95). In September, Goodtimes is releasing a series of four, 45-minute tapes compiled from the "Lifestyles of the Rich and Famous" hosted, of course, by Robin Leach, the cockney voyeur.

"Secrets of the Titanic" (1986, Vestron, $29.95) made a big, er, splash for National Geographic when the company debuted it on video before it aired on Superstation WTBS. "Secrets," with 100,000 copies shipped, ranked as the top-selling video info-program of that year.

Now National Geographic is hoping to repeat that success when it celebrates its 100th birthday by premiering on videocassette "The Explorers: A Century of Discovery" (1988, Vestron, $29.95) in late August, six weeks before its October air date on PBS. E.G. Marshall will host this look at the society's stunning accomplishments.

Disney is trying to battle "E.T." (MCA, $24.95, Oct. 27) this fall by freighting "Cinderella" (1950, $26.99 until Dec. 1; $29.99 thereafter) from the vault Oct. 4. If customers send in proof-of-purchase coupons from two tubes of Crest toothpaste, Disney will give them a $3 rebate. Also, consumers who order the video from a video store between July 11 and Oct. 3 will receive a Disney lithograph from "Cinderella," done by veteran animator Marc Davis.

Say Akira Kurosawa's three-times fast. Want to bone up on small talk for trendy cocktail parties? Nelson Entertainment (385 N. Maple Drive, Suite 350, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90210) is dusting off 102 foreign films from the likes of Federico Fellini, Ingmar Bergman, Jean-Luc Godard and Jean Renoir, all for $29.98 each. Street date is July 27.

No gimmicks. No membership dues. No "Buy six, get four free" nonsense of most video clubs. Home Entertainment Hotline (703 Avenue U, Brooklyn, N.Y. 11223, 1-718-735-9420 or 1-800-245-7496) offers discounts of 10 percent or more on almost all videocassettes in release. For instance, "Casablanca" (1942, CBS/Fox), which lists for $29.98, is available here for $24.95.

Secretaries have a week, why shouldn't video have one? Mark your calendars and be sure to mosey on down to your video store. The Newspaper Advertising Bureau and the Video Software Dealers Association have designated Nov. 13-19 as Video Week. In its honor maybe everyone should demand "Fatal Attraction" and refuse to leave the store until they get a copy.

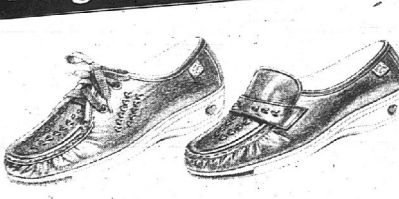

Tired of seeing commercials when you record movies for later playback? Several companies make products that claim to automatically "pause" your recording to edit out the Saniflush ads. Sonatel Communications (302-815 Hornby St., Vancouver, B.C. V6Z 2B6) offers the Adzapper (it snaps onto your VCR) for $149.99.

BEST BETS: "Manchurian Candidate" (1962, MGM/UA, $79.95). Did rights-holder Frank Sinatra suppress it for political reasons? Because of a Beatnik dispute? No one knows, but this film about a brainwashed Korean vet who kills on command to further communism has been surrounded by controversy ever since its release. Top performances by Sinatra, Janet Leigh, Angela Lansbury and especially Laurence Harvey.

"Action Jackson" (1988, Lorimar, $89.98). Violence. Sex. Singing. Variety. Communism has been surrounded by controversy ever since its release. Top performances by Sinatra, Janet Leigh, Angela Lansbury and especially Laurence Harvey.

Fresh herbs add distinction

Summer usually is equated with the very freshest of fresh foods.

This is the time to find available the widest range of the freshest, most colorful and nutritious fruits and vegetables and savor the distinctive flavors and fragrances of fresh parsley, basil, thyme, rosemary, chervil and other delightful herbs.

They are among the easiest plants to grow, and are increasingly available in local markets. The American Institute for Cancer Research often emphasizes that eating healthy does not have to be bland or boring.

A good rule of thumb when cooking is to use two to four times the quantity of fresh herbs as dried.

Robust herbs like sage, sorrel, marjoram and oregano retain their flavor even if cooked a long time. Fine herbs — such as basil, chervil, tarragon and dill — have a delicate flavor and should be added to dishes just before serving.

When a recipe calls for an herb not on hand, generally another one can be substituted with excellent results.

Whole stems of parsley, thyme, rosemary or basil can be used in long-simmering dishes such as soups or stews. Fresh herbs can be prepared with a blender or food mill.

The following vegetarian main dish has a pleasant sweetness and the nutritious low-fat protein of legumes.

Chick-peas piquant

- 1 (16 oz.) can chick peas, drained, rinsed (2 cups)
- 1 red or green bell pepper, diced
- 2 scallions, chopped
- 2 tbsp. lemon juice
- 1 to 2 tbsp. red wine vinegar
- 2 tbsp. olive oil
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 1 tsp. finely chopped fresh oregano or marjoram

Combine peas, bell pepper, scallions, lemon juice, wine vinegar, olive oil, garlic and oregano in medium bowl. Mix well. Cover. Chill in refrigerator at least one hour to allow flavors to blend.

Serve chilled. Yields about 3 servings. $\frac{3}{4}$ cup each, with 13 gm. fat and 365 calories per serving.

Spicy sauce smothers ribs with flavor

Americans love barbecuing for its convenience and the special flavor it imparts to food. Ribs are easy, as well as delicious cooked on a grill.

Preparing flavor-pleasing barbecued ribs is easy if care is taken in selecting ribs and sauce. Good ribs begin with wholesome, high-quality meat. Beef back ribs are an especially flavorful choice. One slab contains at least seven rib bones and the meat between these bones. For ease in handling, select ribs cut in three- to four-rib portions, or cut a whole slab in portions before cooking.

Ribs can be cooked by a direct or indirect cooking method. Indirect cooking is done in a covered grill with coals arranged on either side of a drip pan. Arrange the ribs on a grid, then place the grid over the drip pan. Ribs take only about 45 minutes to an hour to cook using this method.

For the direct cooking method, arrange coals in a single layer in an uncovered grill. The ribs are sprinkled with 2 tablespoons water, wrapped in foil and placed directly over the coals for about 2 hours. Assorted grilled vegetables make an easy accompaniment to the ribs. Add them to the grill as the ribs cook, being careful not to overcook the vegetables.

Choosing a sauce is also important. Barbecue sauces vary and everyone has a favorite, but this spicy, ketchup-based sauce on Spicy Beef Back Ribs is sure to please most barbecue enthusiasts. Pepper sauce and crushed red pepper are ingredients that add zip to this sauce. Simmer the sauce while the ribs cook. Do not apply the sauce too soon or it may cause the ribs to char.

Spicy beef back ribs
5 lb. beef back ribs, cut in 3 to 4

- rib sections
1 cup ketchup
½ cup water
1 medium onion, grated
2 tbsp. fresh lemon juice
1 tsp. pepper sauce
½ to 1 tsp. crushed red pepper
pods

Combine ketchup, water, onion, lemon juice, pepper sauce and red pepper in small saucepan. Bring to boil. Reduce heat. Cook slowly 10 to 12 minutes. Keep warm.

Cook beef back ribs in covered grill using indirect heat, arranging coals on either side of grill. Place drip pan between coals. When coals are ash-gray (about 60 minutes), place ribs, meat-side up, on grid above drip pan. Cover cooker. Cook ribs 45 to 60 minutes or until tender.

Brush reserved sauce over ribs and continue cooking, covered, 10 minutes.

Uncover grill directions: Place ribs, meat-side down, in center of double-thick rectangular heavy-duty aluminum foil. Sprinkle 2 tablespoons water over rib bones. To form packets, bring two opposite sides of foil together over top of ribs. Fold edges over 3 to 4 times, pressing crease in tightly each time, still allowing some air space. Flatten foil at ends. Crease to form triangle and fold over several inches toward package, pressing ribs down to seal. Place packets on grill directly over low to medium coals that take 4 to 5 seconds to pull away when hand is placed 4 inches away from coals. Cook 2 hours, turning packets every 30 minutes.

Remove ribs from packets and replace on grid. Continue cooking 10 to 20 minutes, turning once. Brush sauce over ribs. Continue cooking 10 minutes.

Note: Beef back ribs will yield 1¼ servings per pound.

ENJOY THE PLEASURE of outdoor cooking with barbecued ribs doused with a lively sauce.

Spaghetti milano

- 1 lb. bulk sausage or ground beef
- 1 cup chopped onion
- 1/2 cup diced green pepper
- 1 carrot, peeled, minced
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 2 (15 oz.) cans tomato sauce
- 1 (6 oz.) can tomato paste
- 1 (4 oz.) can sliced mushrooms, drained
- 1 (6 1/2 oz.) can minced clams, undrained
- 1 tsp. salt
- 1 tsp. basil leaves
- 1 tsp. thyme
- 1/2 tsp. pepper

1 lb. spaghetti, uncooked

3 tbsp. butter or margarine, softened
Parmesan cheese

Brown meat, onion, green pepper, carrot and garlic. Drain excess fat.

Add tomato sauce, tomato paste, mushrooms, clams, salt, basil, thyme and pepper. Simmer on low heat 20 minutes.

Prepare spaghetti according to package directions. Drain. Toss with butter.

Serve sauce over hot spaghetti.
Sprinkle with parmesan cheese.
Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Hungarian beef and rice

- 2 cups cooked rice
1½ lb. round steak, cut in 2-by-½ inch strips
2 tbsp. oil
½ cup chopped onion
1 garlic clove, minced
¾ cup water
½ cup ketchup
2 tbsp. brown sugar
2 tbsp. Worcestershire sauce
1 tsp. paprika
½ tsp. dry mustard
1 tsp. salt
1 tbsp. cornstarch

Brown steak quickly in hot oil. Add onion and garlic. Saute 3 to 4

Pour off excess fat. Stir in $\frac{1}{2}$ cup water, ketchup, brown sugar, Worcestershire sauce, paprika, dry mustard and salt. Simmer, covered, 30 minutes.

Combine cornstarch with $\frac{1}{4}$ cup water. Stir into meat mixture. Heat and stir until shiny and thickened.

Serve over hot, fluffy rice.
Makes 4 servings, about $\frac{2}{3}$ cup meat mixture and $\frac{1}{2}$ cup rice each.

Fresh mushrooms, omelets for brunch treat

The tradition of brunch took hold in the 1930s and continues to be a popular way to gather friends.

Begin with a luscious Mushroom Pate, easy to prepare in minutes. Fresh mushrooms, leeks and garlic are sautéed in butter to provide rich flavor and to ensure a velvety smooth texture.

If desired, substitute some of the more exotic, readily available, mushrooms such as shiitake, enoki or oyster for part of the regular mushrooms. Stored tightly wrapped in the refrigerator, this easy-to-make, intensely-flavored spread can be prepared up to two days ahead.

For the main course, a made-to-order Brie And Bacon Omelet is guaranteed to impress. Long known only as an import item, brie is now an American-made cheese that has become readily known and available to shoppers.

Each omelet filled with brie, bacon and toasted pecans serves two and takes only minutes to prepare. To streamline preparation, have two pans available so that one can be heating while an omelet cooks in the second one. As soon as the omelet is set, sprinkle on the chopped brie so its creamy, rich flavor spreads through.

The secret to a light, tender omelet is heat time in milk with the eggs, and cooking in butter that is just the right temperature. Use butter to coat the bottom and sides of the pan to prevent sticking.

Coffeacakes serve as both a bread and dessert at brunch. Mixed Fruit Coffecake, with its spicy streusel layer, is perfect. Bits of dried fruit, dairy sour cream and butter ensure a moist, tender and flavorful cake. Well-wrapped, this cake can be kept at a cool temperature up to five days, or if time permits, it can be baked up to two months ahead and frozen. To serve, simply allow it to come to room temperature.

Mushroom pate

- 1 cup butter
- 1 medium leek (white only), chopped
- 2 small cloves garlic, minced
- 1 lb. fresh mushrooms, coarsely chopped
- 2 tsp. chopped fresh parsley
- 1 tsp. thyme
- 1/2 cup dry white wine
- 2 tsp. dry sherry or sauterie wine
- 1 tsp. salt
- 1 Fresh herb, if desired
- Carrot flowers, if desired
- Toasted French bread slices

Melt butter in large heavy skillet. Sauté leek and garlic until leek is tender, about 8 minutes.

Stir in mushrooms, parsley and thyme. Sauté until mushrooms give off their juices, about 10 minutes.

Stir in wine and sherry. Cook, stirring occasionally, until liquid is reduced and thickened, about 10 minutes. Cool mixture slightly.

Puree in blender or food processor until smooth. Place mixture in 3-cup terrine. Refrigerate, covered, several hours or overnight.

Garnish with fresh herbs and carrots. Serve with toasted French bread slices.

Makes 6 servings; 334 calories, 3 gm. protein, 31 gm. fat, 9 gm. carbohydrate per 1/2-cup serving.

Sprinkle cheese, bacon and nuts over top of omelet. Fold in half. Cut in 2 pieces. Garnish with fresh fruit. Serve immediately.

Makes 2 servings; 536 calories, 25 gm. protein, 47 gm. fat, 5 gm. carbohydrate each.

Mixed fruit coffecake

- 1/2 cup plus 2 tbsp. butter
- 1 1/2 cups firmly packed light brown sugar
- 4 eggs
- 2 tsp. grated lemon peel
- 1 1/2 tsp. vanilla
- 3 cups plus 2 tbsp. flour
- 1 1/2 tsp. baking soda
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 1 cup dairy sour cream
- 1 pkg. (6 oz.) diced mixed dried fruit (1 1/2 cups)
- Confectioner's sugar, if desired
- 1/2 tsp. cinnamon
- 1/2 tsp. nutmeg

For cake batter, cream 1/2 cup butter in large mixer bowl until fluffy. Gradually beat in 1 1/2 cups sugar until light and fluffy. Beat in eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Stir in lemon peel and vanilla.

Combine 3 cups flour, baking soda and salt. Blend in dry ingredients alternately with sour cream, beginning and ending with flour mixture. Mix well after each addition. Gently fold in dried fruit.

For streusel, combine 1/4 cup sugar, 2 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, cinnamon and nutmeg in small bowl, using pastry cutter, until mixture is crumbly.

Spoon one-third batter evenly into well-buttered and floured 10-inch tube pan. Sprinkle with half the streusel. Repeat. Spread remaining one-third cake batter over streusel.

Bake at 350° for 55 to 60 minutes, or until wooden pick inserted in center comes out clean. Let cake cool in pan 15 minutes. Remove from pan. Cool completely on wire rack. Cover. Store at cool temperature. Dust lightly with confectioner's sugar before serving.

Note: Cake may be made ahead and frozen up to 2 months. Thaw, wrapped, in refrigerator.

Makes 16 servings; 345 calories, 5 gm. protein, 15 gm. fat, 49 gm. carbohydrate each.

Try berry milk cooler

Combine 1 cup cold milk, 1/2 cup partially thawed frozen strawberries or raspberries with syrup and 1 scoop lemon sherbet. Blend in blender or with mixer. Garnish with fresh strawberry or raspberry, if desired. Serve immediately.

Whirl peach sunriser for bright start to day

Combine 2 cups orange juice; 2 fresh peaches, sliced; 1 cup plain low-fat yogurt, and 6 ice cubes in blender. Whirl until thick and smooth. Pour over additional ice cubes in tall glasses. Pour in 2 or 3 tablespoons cranberry juice concentrate to get layered effect.

Makes 6 cups.

Chop-chop crunchy cabbage to make cool, crisp coleslaw

When the heat drives everyone from the kitchen, but appetizers need something crisp and inviting to become party again, look no further than coleslaw. It is an easy dish that can be put together in a hurry.

Best of all, it features cabbage, a cruciferous vegetable that is low in calories but high in vitamin C (the greener the better). Cruciferous vegetables also contain indoles, food components that research sponsored by the American Institute for Cancer Research says may help lower colon cancer risk.

Whatever type of cabbage is preferred, always look for heads that are solid, hard and heavy in relation to their size. Heads should be closely trimmed, with stems cut close and only a few outer leaves remaining. Left unwashed, firm heads of green and red cabbage can be refrigerated up to two weeks. The more delicate savoy and Chinese celery cabbage should be used within a week.

For added nutrition, try tossing coleslaw with favorite fruits and vegetables. To cut fat, use dressing made with plain low-fat yogurt or oil and vinegar rather than high-fat mayonnaise or sour cream. Experiment with celery seeds, paprika, curry powder, Dijon mustard, garlic or horseradish for new and interesting tastes.

The following coleslaw recipe has a bit of zip to it, but can be seasoned from mild to spicy. This is a low-calorie dish, lower in fat than most coleslaw dressings. But the dressing still does provide some fat, so balance this with a menu that is otherwise low in fat. It makes an especially good accompaniment to fish.

Tex-Mex coleslaw

1 lb. green cabbage
small or medium onion, sliced
1 tsp. garlic powder
1 tsp. sugar
1/2 cup red wine vinegar
1/2 cup oil
Pepper sauce to taste

Remove outer leaves and core of cabbage. Shred by hand or with food processor. Set aside.

If making dressing in food processor or blender, combine onion, garlic powder, sugar, vinegar, oil and a few drops of pepper sauce, blending until smooth.

If making dressing by hand, finely chop onion, then combine and mix well with garlic powder, sugar, vinegar, oil and pepper sauce. If desired, add pepper sauce drop by drop for more heat.

Four dressing mixture over shredded cabbage. Mix well. Recipe can be made 2 to 3 days in advance. Stir well and recheck seasoning before serving. Try for mild, not overpowering, tangy flavor.

Makes four (1-cup servings).

Easy pocket bread

1 (lb.) loaf frozen bread dough
Cornmeal

Let dough thaw to room temperature. Cut loaf in 6 pieces. On lightly floured board, roll each piece into circle 6 inches in diameter, about 1/4-inch thick.

Sprinkle baking sheet with cornmeal. Place dough circle on pan. Let rise 10 to 15 minutes.

Bake 5 to 7 minutes at 450° or until pockets have formed and crust is lightly browned. Let cool on rack.

When cool, tear in half and fill with a seasoned ground beef mixture, cheese or fresh steamed vegetables.

Makes 12 pockets.

Cheddar soup

with herb croutons

8 slices french bread, cut 1/2 inch thick

1/2 cup butter

1 tsp. Italian seasoning

1/4 cup cheddar cheese spread

1/2 cup chopped celery

1/2 cup onion

1/2 cup flour

1 tsp. dry mustard

If You Will Help Us Test
Our New All Natural,
Safe and Effective Diet Program

* payment made by guaranteed U.S. Government Treasury Bonds

Payment made by guaranteed U.S. Government Treasury Bonds, Certificate of Accrual on Treasury Securities and Easy Growth Treasury Receipts. The securities are currently being held in escrow at the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. The securities are direct obligations of the United States of America. Face Value: Payable to owner in full money of the United States of America, accrued interest set at below ten percent with liquidity of approximately ten percent, guaranteed to be not less than $1,000.00, subject to applicable law.

Answer questions 1-11 and return this notice within 21 days!

YES THAT'S CORRECT. WE WILL PAY YOU a one thousand dollar government bond if you will help us with our testing.

If you are at least 10 lbs. overweight.
If you have tried at least one popular diet plan within the last 12 months.

If you failed to lose (or keep off) all your excess weight and inches.

Then we want you to test The Ultimate Solution Diet Program, the diet program that cannot fail. Now you can eat all the delicious foods you love without ever counting a single calorie.

Before we make this remarkable program available through door to door and home distributors nationwide we want you, as well as a select group of other people, to test the program in the privacy of your own home and report back to us your test results.

You may wonder how we can possibly afford to pay $1,000.00 in U.S. Treasury Bonds to each person who participates in our test. Well, first of all you must see and answer this notice, which is only being run in selected newspapers. Second, as you may know, the weight loss field is a multi-billion dollar industry. We feel that after years of testing, we have developed the most practical, safe and effective diet program ever. We expect that The Ultimate Solution Diet Program, will eventually capture a large portion of that market. We look at this as simply an investment in our future.

The Ultimate Solution Diet Program is the most natural, effective, new and safe way to lose weight and inches that has ever been announced.

Whether you need to lose 10, 15, 30, 50, even 100 pounds or more. If you need to lose inches overall — around your waist, hips, thighs, arms. If you are disgusted with trying one fad diet after another, only to lose weight by starving yourself to death and gain it all back when you could not take it anymore then we want you to test The Ultimate Solution Diet Program.

The Ultimate Solution Diet Program now makes it possible to overall lose:

- up to 15 inches off your waistline
- up to 9 inches off your thighs
- up to 7 inches off your buttocks
- up to 12 inches off your hips

All in record time. People who are extremely overweight can far exceed these figures.

9 GC Hall of Fame committees formed

Kelly Hogan, the newly elected chairman of the Granite City Sports Hall of Fame Association, has announced the membership of nine committees.

In addition to making plans for the third annual dinner next spring, Hogan is making a plea for donations toward buying the material to construct a building to house the Hall of Fame. Checks should be made payable to The Granite City Sports Hall of Fame and should be mailed to Treasurer Dick Portell, 2924 Edgewood Ave., Granite City, Ill. 62040.

The Hall will be built just south of Memorial Stadium. It is estimated it will take two years for construction to be completed. Volunteer student workers in cooperation with the building crafts unions will do the bulk of the work.

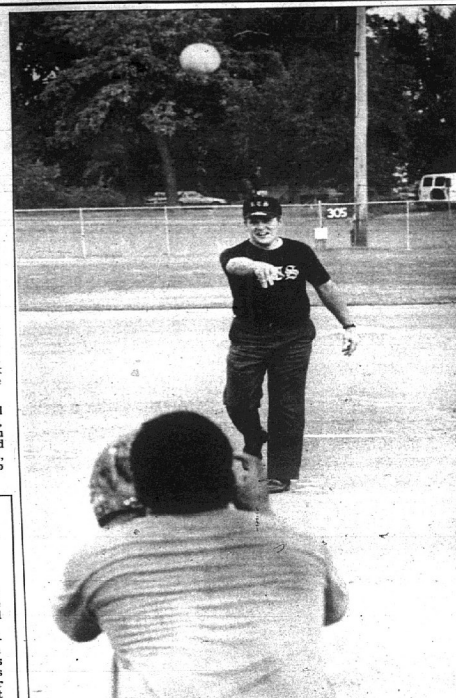

Corporations and other business firms will be asked to make contributions not only for the building materials, but toward an endowment account to help the Hall of Fame Association plan for the future.

Committee appointments follow:

Dinner ad book — George Eubanks (chairman), Dick Portell, Roger Bowler and Ed Reinagel. Induction dinner — Frank Kraus (chairman), Jerry Walters, Ed Harris, John Toncoff and Jack Buente. Golf tournament — Les Thompson (chairman), Paul Fisk, Greg Patton, Joe Fedora and Charles Brisky. Induction and awards — Frank Kraus (chairman), Jack Scarborough, Bill Schooley, Joe Fedora, Greg Patton and Charles Brisky. Building — Ron Landman (chairman), Gene McGovern and Jerry Walters. Archivist and curator — Al Barnes. Endowment — Kelly Hogan, Frank Kraus, Jerry Walters and Dick Portell. Finance — Bill Schooley, Frank Kraus, Dick Portell and Gene McGovern.

Kraus, who headed up the Hall of Fame committee last year, will serve as the vice chairman this year. Walters, who served as treasurer the first two years, traded jobs with Portell, who was the secretary.

Tournament begins

FIRST BALL IS THROWN: Hank Sangster, assistant general manager of Granite City Steel, throws out the first pitch Friday starting a 16-team softball tournament in Madison during the weekend. Courtney Prothro of the coal conversion department team makes the catch. The teams were comprised of steel company employees.

Trade of Forsch a distinct possibility

If the Cardinals make another trade before the end of the month, it would likely involve pitcher Bob Forsch.

Forsch, the senior member of the Cardinals, doesn't see himself in the team's plans for 1989. But he does believe he still can pitch effectively, and so does Whitey Herzog.

Forsch, 38, has the right to approve any trade because of his status as a 5-and-10 man (10 years in the majors, five with the same club). He said he won't approve a deal without first talking with that club's general manager to find out what the club expects of him.

Forsch's name has not yet cropped up in many trade rumors, but that could change in the next week.

Since he moved back into the rotation on July 18, Forsch has made seven starts and has a 3-1 record and a 2.59 earned run average.

There are any number of contending clubs — the Cincinnati Reds and New York Yankees come to mind immediately — who could benefit from a performance such as that down the stretch.

Reds manager Pete Rose is convinced his club is one starter away from making a run at the National League West title. And the Reds may be desperately searching for a starter if injured hurler Jose Rijo (elbow) is not able to pitch this week, as is feared. The names being mentioned by Reds insiders are Forsch, Atlanta's Rick Mahler and — at a considerably higher price — the Cubs' Rick Sutcliffe.

In a recent 14-game stretch, Forsch started with a combined record of 2-7 with a 6.72 ERA — not exactly the type of performance that is going to let them catch the division-leading Detroit Tigers. And New York has reportedly soured on Sutcliffe.

Although the Cardinals don't want to give Forsch away, they know they aren't going to obtain a Pedro Guerrero-type player for him. They would be happy with a mid-level prospect.

"I'd like for my phones to find start burning up so I could find

On Baseball

By Rob Rains

him a job for next year," said general manager Dal Maxvill.

In addition to his uncertain status for next year, Forsch has another reason for thinking a trade wouldn't be the worst development in the world.

Forsch is fairly convinced he wants to stay in baseball after his playing career is over, and he believes it might help his baseball education if he sees how another organization operates.

"People come over here and they tell me this is a good organization," Forsch said. "I've never seen what a bad organization is like. It might be nice to see what the differences are."

Forsch does not put too much stock in the sentimental statistic of playing his entire career with the Cardinals.

"That just isn't too big of a deal to me," he said.

The San Francisco Giants talked to the Cardinals about John Tudor before the deal with the Los Angeles Dodgers that brought Guerrero here was completed.

The Giants offered the Cardinals two Triple A prospects, shortstop Tony Perezchica and left-handed pitcher Trevor Wilson, but balked at the Cardinals' demand that third baseman Matt Williams be included in the deal. Williams would have been either an outfielder or first baseman with the Cardinals.

For those who might like to know, the Dodgers' record this year without Guerrero in the lineup was 37-21. Seattle tried to trade pitcher Mike Moore, presumably to Minnesota, but the

Fall sports preview in Thursday edition

After another lazy summer, high school sports action is right around the corner.

Teams at Granite City, Madison and Venice high schools are preparing for the start of yet another Illinois High School Association year. For an extensive look at the fall teams at the local high school teams, watch out for Autumn Action, a special insert into tomorrow's Press-Record.

Autumn Action previews all the teams in the Quad-City area. Featured will be a look at the Warrior soccer team as they begin defense of their state title. Coupled with that in the regular sports section will be an in-depth profile of two of the players who will play a major part in that title defense — juniors Troy Adamitis and John VanBuskirk.

But autumn more than anything means football. Get a pre-season look at Ron Yates and the Granite City Warriors as they attempt to rebuild after a 2-7 season and try to get back near the form of 1986, when the Warriors were Southwestern Conference champions. The Madison Trojans are coming off their first-ever playoff appearance and will be an exciting team to watch as usual.

Also included will be a look the local volleyball, golf, tennis and cross country teams.

Coolidge football meeting scheduled today

A meeting for all prospective eighth-grade football players at Coolidge Junior High School will be held Wednesday.

Head coach Terry Yates said the meeting will be held in the wrestling room at Coolidge beginning at noon. Parent permission slips will be handed out. Barring a teachers' strike, practice will begin on Thursday, the first scheduled day of classes.

Do you know someone who has been honored? Give them the proper 'tip of the hat' by sending their name, information and photo to the Press-Record-Journal. We like to highlight good accomplishments of our readers to our readers. Call 877-7700 for more information.

More taxpayers and professional preparers acquire their tax knowledge through H & R Block

Each year thousands of people across the United States enroll in the H&R Block Income Tax Course. Whether their reasons are personal or professional, students learn to prepare returns and bring their knowledge up-to-date on the latest tax laws. Some enroll in the course to pick up a valuable new skill; others enroll to polish up their tax preparation skills or to investigate the possibilities for a new career in the tax preparation industry.

Whatever their reasons, by enrolling in the Block course, they receive 13 weeks of training from some of the most experienced professional tax preparers in the U.S. Upon completion of the course, qualified graduates may be offered job interviews for positions with Block. Block is, however, under no obligation to offer employment, nor are graduates under any obligation to accept employment with Block.

This year's tax course starts on September 7. Students may choose from morning, afternoon, and evening classes offered at several area locations. One low fee includes all materials, supplies, and textbooks. Students who successfully complete the course receive Certificates of Achievement and 7.5 continuing education credit units.

Additional information and registration forms are available from the H&R Block office at 634 Wood River Ave., Wood River, IL. The Telephone is 254-8966.

Guerrero deal makes Cardinals worth watching

Springing!

What you just heard there was the sound of the Cardinals finally slamming their front-office gears into motion and springing off the dime.

Actually, when the Pedro Guerrero-for-John Tudor deal was completed, the Cardinals moved off more than a dime. It was more like a mountain of dimes. Thirty million or so dimes. That is what this summer's buck-a-seat increase in ticket prices will put in the Busch Stadium vault before this doomed joyride to the second division runs out of gas on Oct. 2.

In return for all those dimes, the Cardinals have delivered squat. Diddy. Zip.

The Cardinals finally quit moaning, groaning and writhing on the Astroturf. Somebody — Dal Maxvill deserves the credit since he takes the shots when things go sour — did something besides make excuses.

Maxvill put the brakes on this death car.

All things being equal, and Guerrero being healthy, what Maxvill did was pull off a deal

Sports talk

By Dennis Barnidge

that makes the rest of this summer interesting. Better yet, Guerrero makes the summer of '89 promising.

Despite a pinched nerve that has thrown his state to the dogs this summer, Guerrero makes the Cardinals what they would have been this year if they hadn't botched the Jack Clark situation beyond repair. He makes the Cardinals worth watching, worth paying attention to. Even worth paying to see again, a point not lost on the brass.

If it looks like a pennant contender and feels like a pennant contender, and smells like a pennant contender, well, it's either a pennant contender or an overripe vegetable.

How good is Guerrero?

According to Bill James, baseball's premier numbers cruncher and a guy who doesn't dish out praise he can't back up with a ton of numbers, Guerrero is awfully good.

"Pedro is the best hitter God has made in a long time," James wrote in the 1988 Baseball Abstract.

Better than Jack Clark? Throw out the jazzed-up, rabbit-ball numbers of '87, and the answer is: By a long shot. Better than Bob Horner? Be serious.

When Guerrero is average, he's as good as any hitter in the major leagues. When he's hot, he's better than any hitter in the majors. Including Jack Clark.

Guerrero, like Clark, like very few others, is a hitter who beats people by himself. He can carry a team, and this team has needed more carrying than Lazarus since Clark went down in a heap last September.

Be prepared: You'll hear gripes about this deal.

You'll hear that Guerrero can't field. That's true. Guerrero is no Keith Hernandez at first base. To be honest, he's probably not even Keith Moon. But Clark was miserable and Horner was only slightly more mobile at first base than the Gateway Arch. Guerrero carries on the tradition.

You'll hear that Guerrero's a grump, a moody malcontent. What did Clark sound like last winter? What has Whitey Herzog sounded like this summer? You think Tudor couldn't — hasn't matched Guerrero grump for grump over the last several years?

Despite that, it's worth noting that when the Dodgers asked Guerrero to move here, there and everywhere to help the Dodgers, he did it. It was left field one year, third base the next, back to the outfield, over to first base. Guerrero is not George Bell.

Even if he is moody, what's the big deal? Guerrero is a No. 3 hitter, not a camp counselor.

Guerrero isn't a cure-all. But he's reason for hope.

And that's more than the Cardinals have offered since last fall.

GREYHOUND RACING is proving to be big business in many states throughout the midwest.

Greyhound racing makes a splash in nearby states

By Pat Matreoli
Staff affiliate

For those who love racing—and gambling—a little tired of plunking down a $2 bet to watch Sea Biscuit finish out of the money, an exciting alternative form of parimutuel betting is just a four- or five-hour drive away.

Greyhound racing has taken the states of Iowa and Arkansas by storm in recent years, according to officials at the Dubuque, Ia., Greyhound Park and Southland Greyhound Park in West Memphis, Ark.

Statistics compiled by the American Greyhound Track Operators Association (AGTOA), a non-profit corporation composed of the owners and operators of greyhound tracks in the United States, show that 26.4 million spectators attended dog races in 1987.

"It's quite popular here," said Don Hies, director of communications at the Dubuque Greyhound Park. "We draw about 600,000 spectators during our seven-month season. Part of the sport's charm is the excitement, the entertainment, the chance to win and most tracks offer great food."

The greyhound is an animal born to run. Originally a hunting dog because of its speed, greyhounds by nature will chase anything that moves. The United States imported greyhounds in the late 1800s to help farmers control jack rabbits, noted crop destroyers.

Shortly after the dogs were introduced in America, coursing events soon followed. Racing as it is known today began with Owen Patrick Smith's invention of a mechanical lure around 1912, making racing around a circular track possible.

Like horses, greyhounds are bred for racing purposes and can reach speeds up to 45 miles per hour.

Pups usually are transferred to training kennels at the age of one year. Between the ages of 14 and 16 months, a greyhound has completed sufficient training to be placed in a racing kennel and begin qualifying for its racing career.

"Greyhounds are such graceful animals," said Bill Aggar, communications director at Southland Greyhound Park. "They are very fluid in their movement. Like horse racing, a lot of action takes place in less than one minute."

There are 47 AGTOA-member tracks located in the 14 states where greyhound racing is legal. In addition to Iowa and Arkansas, the states are Alabama, Arizona, Colorado, Connecticut, Florida, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Oregon, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Vermont and West Virginia. Florida alone has 15 tracks. There also is a dog racing Hall of Fame, which honors animals and owners, located in Abilene, Texas.

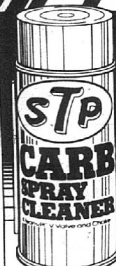

Many tracks offer matinee and evening post times. Wagering is similar to horse racing, and bettors also can box (bet three or more greyhounds in all possible combinations) and wheel (couple one greyhound with every other dog in the field) their tickets. Fans can get the lowdown on all the dogs scheduled to run from the track's racing form.

Hies said greyhound racing is easier to handicap than horse racing.

"There are always the same number of dogs (eight) in each race," he said. "There is more racing (as many as 13 races) on one card and there is no jockey on the track."

Jitterbug still proving most popular bass bait

One of the first topwater bass baits I owned was a frog-colored Jitterbug made by the Fred Arbogast Co.

There were no more than a handful of fishing lure companies back then, the most notable being South Bend, Heddon, Shakespeare, Creek Chub and Arbogast.

I became a bass-fishing fanatic as a youngster and as a teenager I corresponded regularly with Fred Arbogast, hoping to glean some fishing tips from the master's letters.

Three Arbogast lures soon became favorites of mine: The Jitterbug, Hula Popper and Hawaiian Wiggler. The latter, an in-line spinnerbait, was years ahead of its time and featured a skirt composed of 40 strands of very fine rubber, similar to a Hawaiian grass skirt.

Although all are great bass baits, the Jitterbug has proven to be the most popular. It features a wide aluminum disc on its face that, when reeled against the water, causes the bait to wobble back and forth while emitting a glug-glug-glug sound that attracts fish. Because it is one of the few topwater baits made to be retrieved steadily, it is a favorite of fishermen wanting to cover a lot of water quickly and effectively. I caught my first bass on the Jitterbug in 1947 and have been "hooked" on it ever since. Arbogast invented the bait in the 1930s and it proved an immediate success with bass anglers all across the country. Later models included a spinning-size and a muskie-size Jitterbug, the latter weighing 1 1/4 ounces and sporting three sets of the most formidable treble hooks you have ever seen.

Although this biggie was intended for use on muskies of the north country, a good many fishermen, especially in the South, use it in solid black for night bass fishing. I bought one, tried it for a while, but soon went back to my favorite five-ounce model.

Incidentally, black is the favorite color for Jitterbug fans intent on luring a lunger at night. A friend of mine who lives in Florida uses nothing else for night bass fishing in the shallow lakes around Orlando, Fla., and takes impressive catches of big bass with it.

What makes the Jitterbug such a favorite is that it catches bass, day or night, in varied waters all across the country. Another plus for the average fisherman is that it's easy to use, requiring no fancy rod manipulation. Of all the retrieves I've tried, I still catch most bass by simply casting it to a choice location, allowing it to rest 10 seconds or so, then reeling it back just fast enough to get a wobbling motion and that glug-glug-glug sound.

I hold the rod tip low to the water, pointing it straight at the bait. Occasionally, I'll let it rest after paddling it for five or six feet, then start it up again. However, I can't say that retrieve is better than continuous reeling. I'd recommend it as a great all-around surface bait for the average fisherman.

Another excellent wobbling-type surface bait is the Crazy Crawler. Made by Heddon, this floater achieves that peculiar side-to-side rocking, swimming motion by a hinged metal arm or flapper on each side of the bait. On the retrieve, the flappers cause the bait to roll from side to side as if actually swimming. A more pleasant sight is when a hefty bass explodes on it, something pond bass especially do with satisfying frequency.

Another plus for the Jitterbug and Crazy Crawler is that they are good hookers. Keep the hooks needle sharp, set the hooks with authority when a fish hits and you won't miss many fish. I'm also betting you will catch your share of big ones.

Are you engaged, or getting married? Congratulations! Let others know by publishing your picture and article FREE in the Press-Record/Journal.

of the back of a normal, which I guess makes it more of an honest sport.

The sport's biggest event of the year is the $15,000 Greyhound Race of Champions, scheduled for Sept. 3 at Southland. This marks the seventh year the event has been held.

Participating tracks send two representatives to race in three qualifying rounds. The top eight survivors meet in the finale, with the winner taking home $50,000.

Females have dominated the event, winning four of the previous six championships. Last year's winner was E.T.'s Peaky, owned by Emil Tans of Cape Coral, Fla.

"We're very excited to be hosting this event," Appgar said. "We like to think of it as the Kentucky Derby of greyhound racing because nobody but the best are eligible."

Rains

deal was blocked when Oakland claimed Moore on waivers. One Mariners official was so steamed he said, "The A's will not have a player claim waivers in August for the next 10 years." The right-handed Moore, incidentally, is a free agent after the season and just might be the Cardinals' top pitching target during the off-season.

Other trade rumors as the contending clubs get close to setting their rosters (by Aug. 31) for postseason play: The Toronto Blue Jays could trade Dave Stieb, Manny Lee or Jesse Barfield. The Boston Red Sox are interested in Baltimore's Dave Schmidt. Schmidt, 30, has a right to say which teams he would accept a trade to. His contract allows him to name eight clubs he can't be traded to, but the Cubs have so far not asked him to pick those clubs. The Cubs say intent in catcher Jody Davis has dropped off. California's Brian Downing, rumored to be going to Detroit, said he will retire if he is dealt to anybody. "Even if it means getting a (World Series) ring, I'd retire," he said.

San Diego's Tony Gwynn has hit more than 400 since July 2 and just might win the National League batting title, but he said, "If I win the silver bat I'll put it with my other two, but I won't be as proud of this one because I stunk the first three months." For the second time in three years, the Red Sox are being sued by a former member of their organization. Tommy Harper sued the team in 1985 for racial discrimination and received a $400,000 out-of-court settlement. Now Tony Torchia, a manager in their farm system and former coach on the big league club, is suing the team for firing him for unspecified medical problems. The Chicago White Sox's Barry Jones cut his right index finger while unloading his stereo after being acquired in a trade from the Pirates. The best individual race to watch the rest of the season could be the Rookie of the Year battle between the Cubs' Mark Grace and the Reds' Chris Sabo.

Ex-Cardinals of the Week: Dave LaPoint, Pittsburgh Pirates, and John Tudor, Los Angeles. Each won his first start for his new team in the heat of the pennant race last Wednesday, LaPoint beating the Braves and Tudor beating the Phillies.
